THE TROOP TRAINING UNIT IN AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS

BY MAJ. GEN. LEWIS B. PULLER, USMC
Troop Training Unit, Amphibious Training
Command, Pacific Fleet

APPROXIMATELY 375,000 members of the United States Armed Forces have participated in amphibious training conducted by the Troop Training Unit (TTU), Pacific, since it was activated at Camp Elliott, San Diego, Calif., on 16 July 1943.

The unchanging mission of TTU has been to train individuals and units of the U. S. Armed Forces in the principles of amphibious warfare, doctrines, and techniques for joint amphibious operations. Made of combat-experienced officers and men of the Marine Corps, Army, Navy and Air Forces, TTU is truly a unified activity. It is organized so that it can—and frequently does—carry out its primary mission simultaneously in several widely separated locations in the Pacific area. Now based at Coronado (San Diego), TTU continues its mission at west coast training centers, by Mobile Teams and at camps in the Far East. In 1953, the Chinese Marine Corps of the Chinese Nationalist Forces on Formosa were added to the Far East circuit.

Subordinate to the Navy's Amphibious Training Command, Pacific, TTU functions as an instructional counterpart of the Naval Amphibious Training Unit (NATU), for the landing elements, emphasizing planning, pre-embarkation, out-loading, movement to the objective, and assault considerations for landing forces in amphibious operations.

TTU consists of two functional elements: (1) the administrative division

Army Promotions Due, More Seen for April

The Army was preparing to announce about 1500 temporary officer promotions to captain, major and lieutenant colonel as THE JOURNAL went to press. About half probably will be to captain.

The indications are that previous forecasts telling of a stepped-up promotion pace will prove correct for April. This may mean that April will see more than 2000 temporary advancements.

As has been stated frequently, the Army wants to make as many promotions as budgetary and manpower ceilings will permit, and in this aim has support of the Armed Services Committees.

The Army promotion program was slowed down by hundreds, if not thousands, of advancements during the end of 1953 and the early weeks of 1954.

Advance Pay Bill Sent To Capitol

The Defense Department, with the Army acting as executive agent, has asked Congress to vote legislation to provide for advance payments to uniformed personnel incident to release from active duty or training duty.

This money would be paid without regard to the actual performance of travel, pay and allowances to which persons are otherwise entitled for the period required to travel from last duty station to home.

The Army said that a similar provision of law was first enacted in March 1923, but was repealed by the Career Compensation Act of 1949.

However, such payment is authorized at the present time for members of the National Guard participating in encampments, maneuvers or other exercises.

Payment of advance pay would be accomplished by one voucher at the time the military member leaves the post of duty incident to release from active duty or training duty without the necessity of follow-up procedures or additional payments and without regard to whether or not the member, so far as pay and allowances are concerned, actually traveled to his home, the Army said.

FAMILY CARE

The Dependent Care Bill, aimed at providing more equitable medical benefits for Service families, is ready to roll, following modifications asked by the Bureau of the Budget.

In past years, the BOB has been less than enthusiastic over attempts to expand dependent care, but now is certain to give the measure its O.K., in view of President Eisenhower's statements on the subject.

Defense chiefs are counting on the President's influential support to offset opposition that is certain to develop, notably from the American Medical Association.

Pentagon Will Ask Capitol to Extend Survivor Benefits Decision Deadline

Legislation affecting scores of thousands of military personnel and their families will be sent to Capitol Hill momentarily.

The bill, to be monitored by the Navy, will ask an extension from 30 April 1954 to 30 Nov. 1954 of the deadline for decision on the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act.

This is the Act which permits military personnel to elect to receive reduced retired pay in order to provide annuities for survivors.

The extension, as now proposed, would not affect persons on the retired list who must make a decision as to whether or not they desire to participate and, if so, under which of four options by 30 April.

Pentagon officials say that the extension is necessary because of the fact that reports show large percentages of personnel on active duty do not yet understand the USCOA plan.

One reason for this is the fact that the implementing Executive Order was held up for a long time, thus preventing the issuance of regulations and explanations to the field.

All the Services now are taking vigorous action to acquaint personnel with details of the legislation, but are unanimous in expressing a desire for an extension.

CUT COMMISSARY SURCHARGE 1 APRIL

Army and Air Force families will find their grocery bill slightly reduced at commissaries effective 1 April as a result of a cut in the surcharge.

The surcharge in U. S. Commissaries will be reduced from 5 to 3½ per cent; overseas the new rate will be 3 instead of 4 per cent.

The extra charge on commissary bills was imposed several years ago in an Appropriations Act rider and was designed to cover such costs as rent, light, utilities, etc.

Defense officials say that a new accounting system has been developed which transfers from the surcharge to the actual cost of the food items some of the expenses now listed in the former category.

As a result, during recent months some food prices went up, so that in broad perspective the 1½ or 1 per cent cut in the surcharge will not be a net gain.

However, in comparison with grocery costs during the past weeks, there will be a savings of up to 1½%.

Warrant Officer Bill Heads for Fast Vote

Following unanimous approval this week by the Armed Services Committee, the Warrant Officer Career Bill, affecting more than 31,000 warrant officers on active duty all in the Uniform Services, is slated for early vote in the House—probably next week.

The new legislation, HR 6374, is designed to smooth out the discrepancies in promotional opportunities for warrant officers throughout the Armed Services.

At the present time, warrant officers in the Navy and the Marine Corps must complete six years in grade before becoming eligible for promotion to commissioned warrant officer. In the Army and Air Force, a WOJG must complete 10 years of service in grade before becoming eligible for promotion to Chief Warrant Officer.

In 1949, under the Career Compensation Act, four pay grades were established for warrant officers, but military grades were not established. As a result, the Services had to improvise with respect to the four pay grades since that time. This was done through temporary

SHIFT AIR GENS. IN KEY SPOTS

President Eisenhower, who last month named three Air Force lieutenant generals for four-star rank, this week asked the Senate to approve new assignments for two three-star officers who would retain their present rank and to O.K. a third star for two major generals, Thomas S. Power and Roger M. Ramey.

Details of the general officer shifts are told on this page.

Lt. Gen. Craigie Will Head AAFSE, Reassign Lt. Gen. Schlatter to AFSC

Lt. Gen. Laurence C. Craigie, USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff, Development, who won fame in October 1942 as the first U. S. military pilot to fly a jet plane, is headed for a NATO assignment.

President Eisenhower has named him to be Commander Allied Air Forces Southern Europe.

General Craigie will replace Lt. Gen. David M. Schlatter, who becomes Commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., where he will replace retiring Lt. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, USA, about 15 June.

A 1923 West Point graduate, General Craigie, who is 52, has been DC/S, Development, since November 1951. Previously he served from June 1950 as Vice Commandant of the Far East Air Forces and prior to that was commandant of the USAF Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

General Schlatter, 52, also is a 1923 West Point graduate. He has been Commander of AAFSE since August 1951, going to that post from assignment as deputy commander of the Research and Development Command.

General Schlatter in July 1948 was named senior Air Force member of the Military Liaison Committee, Atomic Energy Commission, and in August was made Assistant DC/C, Operations, for Atomic Energy.

Lt. Gen. Craigie

Lt. Gen. Schlatter

Gen. Power Goes to Top ARDC Post After Long Service With SAC Hdqs.

Named by President Eisenhower for a third star, Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Power will take command of the Air Research Development Command following more than five years service as No. 2 man of the Strategic Air Command.

Commissioned as a Regular in 1929, General Power, 48, served as A-3 under General Carl Spaatz, then commanding the Strategic Air Forces in the Pacific, during the atomic bomb attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Later, he served on the staff of "Crossroads," the atomic bomb tests at Bikini Atoll in 1946.

At ARDC, General Power will replace Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt, who takes over General Craigie's post as DC/S, Development.

General Putt, also commissioned in 1929, will be 49 on 14 May. He was made vice commander of ARDC in January 1952 and became commander in 1953.

It's interesting to note that in November 1951 when General Craigie was made DC/S, Development, General Putt was made Assistant.

Gen. Washbourne Named To Head New AF Post

Maj. Gen. Lee B. Washbourne has been named to the newly-created post of Assistant Chief of Staff, Installations, to administer the Air Force's 7,000,000,000 dollar construction program at bases around the world.

The new organizational setup is designed to result in more effective administration of the base program and reduce the workload imposed on the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations.

Formerly, General Washbourne was Director of Installations under the Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations.

The Directorate of Installations will be replaced by three new Directorates under General Washbourne: Real Property, Construction, and Facilities Support.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott recently told Congress that the installations program is falling behind aircraft and personnel procurement programs in the Air Force expansion, and that additional emphasis on base construction and improvement is necessary to insure the efficient completion of the 137 wing program.

Robert T. Ross, Former Congressman, Top Aide For Defense Dept. Legislation

Robert T. Ross, who served in the 80th Congress and who filled an unexpired term in the 82d, has been named by Assistant Defense Secretary Fred Seaton to be Deputy Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs.

In this post Mr. Ross, who has a son, Ford, in the lighter-than-air component of the Navy, will aid Mr. Seaton in directing legislative activities of the Defense Department.

An official announcement said he "will also review and recommend policies and criteria governing the legislative program of the Department of Defense and liaison with the Congress."

During his service on Capitol Hill, Mr. Ross served in the 80th Congress as a member of the Veterans Affairs Committee and won commendations from a number of Veterans' organizations.

During 1953 he was Washington liaison for the New York Republican Committee. Assistant Secretary Seaton, in addition to his responsibility for Legislative Affairs, also has Defense Department cognizance of Public Affairs.

Earlier this month, Mr. D. Walter Swan was sworn in as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs.

Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey Will Head Fifth AF

President Eisenhower this week named Maj. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, Air Force Director of Operations, to command the Fifth Air Force in Korea with the rank of lieutenant general.

He will replace Lt. Gen. Samuel E. Anderson, who has held the post since May 1953, and for whom a new assignment has yet to be announced.

In the past, Air Force lieutenant generals returning to the U. S. from the Fifth Air Force post have lost their star, at least temporarily.

General Ramey, 50, is a 1928 West Point graduate. General Anderson, 48, is a classmate. It's interesting to note that General Ramey during part of WWII commanded the Fifth Bomber Command of the Fifth Air Force in the Pacific.

During June and July 1946, General Ramey commanded Task Force 1.5, the AAF portion of the combined Army-Navy operations at Bikini Atoll. He was in charge of all the aerial activity at Bikini.

In June 1950, General Ramey became Assistant to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations at Air Force headquarters in Washington, D. C. The following month, when the Directorate of Plans and Operations in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations was split into two directorates, he was appointed to the newly-created post of Director of Operations.

Gen. Harrison Takes Over Caribbean Com. in June

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., Chief of Staff of the Far East Command, will succeed retiring Lt. Gen. Horace L. McBride in June as Commander-in-Chief of the Caribbean Command.

General McBride will retire from service 30 June after 42 years of active duty. Prior to his present post, he was commandant of the Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

General Harrison in 1951 was appointed Deputy Commanding General of the Eighth Army in Korea. He later assumed additional duties as a member of the UN Command Korean Armistice Delegation of which he became Chief in May, 1952. The following year he was named Deputy Commander of the US Army Forces in the Far East, and in April, 1953 he was named Chief of Staff of the Far East Command.

Air Guard Pilot Tng. Open

The Air National Guard reports that vacancies exist for 58 officers and 224 airman applications for pilot training during the remainder of the current fiscal year.

The new pilots graduated under this program will be returned to their original Air Guard units.

Qualified applicants in a deferred Selective Service status who have completed two years of college may attend pilot training in a commissioned status. High school graduates are accepted as aviation cadets and are commissioned upon completion of training.

Will Name WSEG Research Chief, Says Sec'y Wilson

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said this week that a Director of Research for the Weapons Systems Evaluation Group will be named, but said "we can't find quite the right man."

An article in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL concerning utilization of scientists in top strategic planning pointed out that the post has been vacant for seven months.

Mr. Wilson said at his press conference this week that Assistant Defense Secretary Donald Quarles, who is in charge of Research and Development, "is looking after it."

The Secretary stated that the job is not being neglected and stressed that "we do want to put a good man on it."

There is talk that the Defense Department has found it difficult to find "the right man" because of the feeling in scientific circles that the WSEG has not achieved the stature that was once intended for it.

The Army's traditional summer uniform—cotton khaki shirt and trousers—has been authorized for duty wear by officers and enlisted personnel in Germany from 1 May to 30 October.

This is the first time that personnel in Germany will be permitted to wear the light-weight uniform for duty during summer months. Previously the complete khaki uniform was restricted to off-duty wear only.

USAREUR officials said duty wear of the summer uniform in Germany will be prescribed locally by area and unit commanders on the basis of local weather conditions. When unfavorable weather prevents wear of khakis, the regular OD winter service uniform will be worn.

Officials pointed out that personnel assigned to units in Munich might wear khakis on a particular day, while on the same day in the Frankfurt area ODs might be worn.

Members of the Women's Army Corps will continue to wear the wool taupe uniform for duty after 1 May. During extremely hot weather, however, local commanders may prescribe the cotton taupe dress.

Officials said that the wear of cotton, poplin, or twill shirts with OD trousers for duty—the previous summer uniform in Germany—is no longer authorized. They said, however, that tropical worsted shirts and trousers may be authorized for duty wear as a substitute for the khaki uniform.

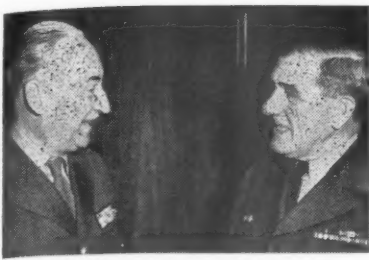

The summer uniform or civilian dress, they added, will continue to be optional for off-duty wear, regardless of whether the summer uniform is worn for duty.

Col. Monroe To Chicago, Heads Air Reserve Center

Col. Ford M. Monroe, USAF, Tenth Air Force vice chief of staff, Selfridge AFB, Mich., will head the newly established Chicago Air Reserve Center.

A one-time military organization and training advisor to the Chinese Nationalist forces, he officially takes over his new post 1 April.

Colonel Monroe and his wife, Louise, have a 19-year-old son, Douglass C., a Marine airman at Jacksonville, Fla., Naval Air Station.

NG Divs. Will Return To State Control in June

The numerical designations and colors of the 28th, 31st, 37th and 43d National Guard Infantry Divisions, now on active duty, will be returned to State control in June.

This is the result of the readjusted troop strength program and Public Law 461 which requires the return to the States of NG designations and colors not more than five years after their call to active Federal service.

Personnel of these units, other than those who have volunteered to remain on active duty, have long since been separated from service. Personnel comprising these divisions will be utilized to organize Regular Army divisions at the same stations and locations.

Two of the National Guard designations are now carried by divisions in the Army in Europe, the 28th Infantry Division from Pennsylvania, and the 43d Infantry Division from Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont.

The other two National Guard divisions whose designations and colors will be returned to the States in June are the 31st (Alabama and Mississippi) Infantry Division at Camp Carson, Colo., and the 37th (Ohio) Infantry Division now at Camp Polk, La., and scheduled to move to Ft. Riley, Kans., in May. The scheduled return of the numerical designations and colors of the 40th Infantry Division of California and the 45th Infantry Division of Oklahoma from the Far East Command to State control was announced previously.

Only two NG divisions will remain on active duty, the 44th of Illinois now at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and the 47th of Minnesota and North Dakota, now at Camp Rucker, Ala., and these two will be returned to State control during fiscal 1955.

EES Pours $7-Million Into '53 Welfare Fund

The welfare fund for soldiers, sailors, and airman in Germany and Austria was increased by $7,000,000 during the 1953 fiscal year by the European Exchange system.

In its annual report on post exchange activities in Europe, the Army's headquarters in Europe announced that sales, service and other income during the 1953 fiscal period was $175,422,494.56.

The $7,374,000 paid into the military welfare fund by EES financed athletic programs and facilities, enlisted men's service clubs, libraries and similar recreational activities.

Net profits of the post exchange system totaled 8.16 per cent of sales. Profit not used in welfare fund activities were utilized to increase inventory and purchase new operating equipment.

EES officials also stated that servicemen saved millions of dollars in customer dividends during the year. The post exchange policy of furnishing merchandise at standard low prices, regardless of operating and transportation costs in isolated areas, stopped customer dividends from being even more extensive.

SecDef Wilson Discusses Specialist Tours, Says 3 Years Not Bad, But 4 May Be Better

The recurring matter of possible extension of tours for Armed Forces officers engaged in specialist functions, such as procurement, came to the fore again this week during a news conference held by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

At one time, Mr. Wilson and Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes were said to be strong advocates of keeping specialists on a particular type of assignment for extended periods, possibly up to five years.

This objective apparently has been tempered, for Mr. Wilson now says, as disclosed in the following colloquy, that "four (years) might be all right in most cases," adding that "three isn't so bad."

THE PRESS: Mr. Secretary, has any decision been made to give longer tours of duty to military personnel engaged in specialized activity like procurement?

SECY. WILSON: We keep talking about it all the time. We are trying to get the right people in the right kind of job so that they are interested in it and have experience in it and they do better. It isn't any simple problem. We all recognize that it always helps to have a lot of experience and knowledge in the business you are doing. If you are in a job too long, however, you get to be such a specialist that then if you try to move it is a difficult thing, too, so that the services are facing this problem of overspecialization on one side and moving the people too rapidly on the other, and we are working out the best thing we can in regard to the matter.

THE PRESS: Do you think that the present service policy is about as good as it can be?

SECY. WILSON: I think we would be better off to leave the men a little longer in their occupations on the average.

THE PRESS: About how much longer? Three years is the standard tour now of duty. Would you lengthen that to—

SEC. WILSON: I think four might be all right in most cases. Three isn't so bad. It is when for some reason or other we move a man under that, which happens every now and then.

Hopes for Concurrent Europe Travel Raised by Housing Plan Approval

Hopes for concurrent travel of military dependents to Europe were given a boost this week when the House Armed Services Committee approved plans for the construction of 2,966 Guarantee Rental Housing units in 23 new locations in France.

Army requests for the projects—sometimes called "French Wherry Housing"—total 1,091 units and the Air Force requests total 1,875 units.

The following table gives the location and the number of units which will be constructed:

ARMY
Verdun	175 units
Etain	4 units
Metz	100 units
Sampigny	25 units
Robert Espange (Bar le Duc)	72 units
Forêt de Haye	25 units
Chinon	40 units
Ingrandes	30 units
Poitiers	200 units
La Rochelle	150 units
Rochefort	50 units
Fontenot	25 units
Braconne (Angoulême)	35 units
Landes de Bussac	100 units
Perleux	20 units
Captieux	40 units

AIR FORCE
Laon	400 units
Toul	195 units
Evreux	570 units
Orly	250 units
Dreux	400 units
Niort	35 units
Casaux	25 units

Defense officials are hopeful that improved housing conditions in Europe will make it possible in the not distant future to expand the opportunity for concurrent travel of dependents to assignments across the Atlantic. They see this as an important boost to morale.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Franklin G. Floete previously informed the Armed Services Committee that the estimated need at the above locations was 5,859 units.

Phase one of the "French Wherry Housing" projects was inaugurated in June 1953 when the Committee approved construction of 10 units in Chateaux, 400 in Orleans, 300 in Paris, 200 in Bordeaux, 300 in Charmont, and 400 in Toul-Rosieres.

The program has progressed in accordance with advance expectations. One of the principal problems has been the selection of a proper site. The sponsor for each project is required to locate a tract of ground of adequate size, which is located near utilities and community facilities.

To be eligible for advantageous financing, the site must not only be within reasonable commuting distance of the United States military base, but also, in view of the fact that it will eventually be integrated into the local economy, it must be within or adjacent to a French community.

For a project to be eligible for 30 per cent financial participation by the French Government agency "Credit Fibrier," a site location, land planning, and architectural designs must receive advance approval of local and national offices of the French Reconstruction Ministry.

Rentals at the locations for which contracts have already been let run from $102.50 for a two bedroom unit to $160.00 for a three bedroom unit.

The average project rental is about $121.00.

Units already under construction will have adequate heat and unlimited hot water, with electricity metered to the tenants. For the most part the projects are walk-up apartment units of concrete construction. The designs combine French exterior treatment with American concepts of room arrangement. Kitchens and bathrooms include all standard equipment.

Financing has been provided by French capital, with the French Government supplying 30 per cent of the total capital investment. To assure performance under the contracts, surety bonds have been required of the sponsors. Heavy penalties will be levied in the event of default.

The first units in phase one of the project are expected to be ready for occupancy very shortly.

The U. S. Government guarantees 95 per cent occupancy for five years.

The Committee has also approved 600 units to be constructed in Salzburg, Austria. These units, however, do not come under the Guarantee Rental Housing plan. In this case the Austrian Government will put up two million of the three million dollars necessary for their construction.

Maj. Gen. James F. Collins, who became executive to then Assistant Defense Secretary Anna M. Rosenberg and who has served as Deputy for Military Personnel under Assistant Defense Secretary

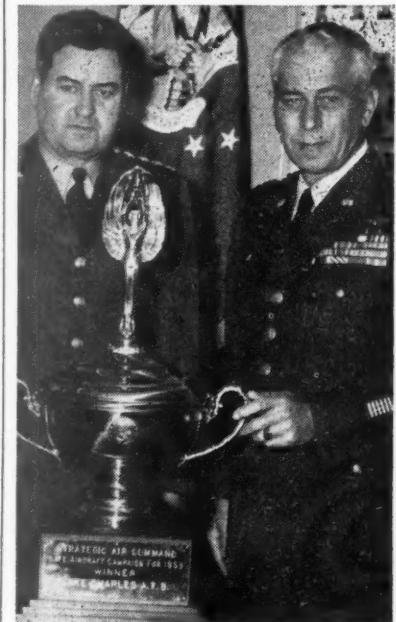

Maj. Gen. Collins

John A. Hannah, will become CG USA, Alaska, in August.

He will replace Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, who will go to the Office, Chief, Army Field Forces, Ft. Monroe, Va., following service since April 1952 as USARAL CG.

GENERAL Curtis E. LeMay, (left) commander of the Strategic Air Command, presents Maj. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, Second Air Force commander, with SAC's flying safety trophy for 1953.

General Armstrong accepted the award at SAC Headquarters on behalf of Lake Charles Air Force Base, La. The safest base of the past year in the command's constant flying safety campaign, Lake Charles was accident free from September 1952 through December 1953. This is the second successive year that a Second Air Force base has won the trophy. Ramey AFB, P. R. held the trophy for 1952.

In making the presentation, General LeMay noted, "Lake Charles has accomplished this achievement in flight safety during a difficult period of expansion and increased responsibilities resulting from conversion to B-47 type aircraft."

Compact Hospital at Keesler

Preliminary construction work for a new ultra-modern hospital at Keesler AFB, Miss., will be completed within the next four months.

Lt. Col. John L. Whitlock, Air Installation Officer, who announced the construction schedule, said the new hospital would be air-conditioned and designed so that additional stories can be added in the future if necessary. One feature of the new building will be its compactness. It will take up only about half as much space as the present hospital units at Keesler cover.

General Miley, 56, is a 1918 West Point graduate, commissioned in the Infantry, who was one of the Army's first paratroopers, commanding the 501st Parachute Battalion at Ft. Benning, Ga., in October 1940. He commanded the 17th Airborne Division in Europe during WW II.

Following the war, his assignments have included command of the Airborne School, command of the 11th Airborne Division, command of the Army Airborne Center and senior Army representative on the Joint Airborne Troop Board.

Artillery School Develops Method For "Air Mailing" 105mm Howitzers

The helicopter is receiving added stature as a result of continuing tests at the Artillery School at Ft. Sill, Okla.

Though it has been possible for some time to move the 75mm pack howitzer and the 4.5-inch rocket launcher by 'copter, a new chapter in the history of artillery mobility was opened recently when the 105mm howitzer was added to the ranks of 'copter-borne weapons.

The helicopter used for transporting the 105 is the same H-19 which has flown for thousands of hours in Korea.

Any artillery units can soon learn to move 105's by 'copter. No special tools are required; just two stout tree limbs and a wooden block measuring 4x4x12 inches.

Brig. Gen. Thomas M. Watlington, former X Corps Artillery Commander, and present Assistant Commandant, The Artillery School, has been instrumental in the development of the 'copter lift of the 105mm howitzer. Personnel who have helped perfect the lift include representatives of the Army Aviation School and the Department of Tactics and Combined Arms.

Because of the weight factor, the 105 is disassembled and lashed in three loads, plus the wheels. The loads are slung beneath the 'copter. Larger 'copters will probably carry the 105 assembled.

The present method is extremely rapid when compared to ground movement. It takes less than 15 minutes to disassemble and prepare a 105 for its 'copter lift and less than 20 minutes to prepare it for firing at the delivery point.

This method of "air mailing" 105's to new positions is expected to give the infantry and armor the fastest, most effective artillery support of any army in history.

ARMY PROMOTION CIRCULAR CONTINUES CRITERIA

The Army has released Circular No. 22, which continues present criteria for enlisted promotions to grades E-3 through E-7. To be eligible, enlisted personnel must have served at least two months in a higher position in the recommending unit and must have completed 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 months in grade for advancement, respectively, to E-3, E-4, E-5, E-6, and E-7.

The Army reiterated that budgetary and strength limitations require D/A control of promotions and said that current policy "provides an equitable distribution of promotion opportunities to all commands."

Former POW In Korea Army Chief Ranger

Maj. Harold K. Slater has been appointed chief of The Infantry School's Ranger Training Camp at Eglin AFB, Fla. He replaces Maj. Arthur B. Simons, who will take an advanced course for associated officers at The Infantry School.

Released during "Operation Big Switch" in Korea after 26 months as a POW, Major Slater was assigned to The Infantry Center in November. He had served with the Korean Military Advisory Group before his capture in 1951.

Gen. Wright Leaves MDW

Maj. Gen. E. K. Wright, CG of the Military District of Washington since April 1952, has been named CG, 6th Infantry Division, Ft. Ord, Calif.

General Wright will be succeeded by Maj. Gen. John H. Stokes, Jr., a Washingtonian, presently assigned to the Review Board Council, Office of the Secretary of the Army in The Pentagon.

General Wright will take command of the 6th Division about 3 May. With his reassignment, General Wright completes his second tour of duty in Washington since World War II. He was for 3½ years Deputy Director of the super secret Central Intelligence Agency beginning in 1946.

Army Reduces Top School Service Requirement

The Army will reduce the minimum service requirement for officers enrolling in the National War College or the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, both in the Nation's Capital, from 18 to 15 years beginning with the 1954-55 school year.

This means that younger officers will be eligible for selection.

The Army said the action will also result in longer years of service of graduates and will afford graduates opportunity for early attainment of higher level command and staff assignments.

Present service requirements extend from 18-25 years; new criteria will be 15-25 years.

Service requirements for the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., considered on the same educational level as the two joint Service institutions, will be 15-25 years, but the present criteria of 13-21 years will remain in effect until the 1955-56 school year, the Army said.

Sees No. 1 wish come true!

Television Tape Recording by RCA Opens New Era of Electronic Photography

In 1956, RCA's General Sarnoff will celebrate his 50th year in radio. Looking ahead to that anniversary, in 1951 he asked his family of scientists and researchers for three gifts to mark the occasion. His three wishes: (1) A television tape recorder, (2) An electronic air conditioner, (3) A true amplifier of light.

Gift No. 1—the video tape recorder—has already been successfully demonstrated, two years ahead of time! Both color and black-and-white TV pictures were instantly recorded on magnetic tape without any photographic development or processing.

You can well imagine the future importance of this development to television broadcasting, to motion pictures, education, industry and national defense. And you can see its entertainment value to you, in your own home. There the tape equipment could be used for home movies, and—simply by connecting it to your television set—you could make personal recordings of your favorite TV programs.

Expressing his gratitude for this "gift," General Sarnoff said it was only a matter of time, perhaps two years, before the finishing touches would bring this recording system to commercial reality. He described this RCA achievement as the first major step into an era of "electronic photography."

Such achievements as Television Tape Recording, stemming from continuous pioneering in research and engineering, make "RCA" an emblem of quality, dependability and progress.

Last Large OCS Class Graduates In April, 80% Slash In Program Scheduled For '55

The last large class at the Navy's Officer Candidate School, Newport, R. I., will graduate 2 April when about 800 will complete courses. Then an 80 per cent slash in enrollments will go into effect.

The Navy expects to have below 1,000 in attendance at OCS in FY '55. About 5,000 attended OCS last year.

The reduction is the result of recent budget cuts, the Navy said.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air James H. Smith, jr., will be the principal speaker at the April exercises and will present the graduates with diplomas.

About 700 of the students will finish the 16 week Line School, and the others, the Specialists' eight-week course.

Ensign Robert J. Kalupa, student Battalion Commander, will be the valedictorian.

NEW COMBAT INSIGNIA

Navy personnel who served in combat with the Fleet Marine Forces either in WW II or in the Korean War are eligible to wear the new Fleet Marine Force Combat Operations Insignia.

The device, a miniature bronze replica of the U. S. Marine Corps emblem, will be worn on the appropriate campaign ribbon. Authorized engagement stars should be placed symmetrically around the insignia on the ribbon, the Navy said, the first star to the wearer's right, the second to his left.

Commanding officers will determine eligibility under prescribed criteria and issue authorizations for eligible personnel to wear the insignia.

WAVES With Degrees

May Get Commissions

Regular or Reserve Navy enlisted women on active duty who have college degrees may apply for appointment as ensigns in the Naval Reserve.

This new program is in addition to the program under which outstanding enlisted women, who do not have college degrees, but who successfully pass certain examinations, are selected for appointment in commissioned grade in the Regular Navy.

Under the new system, successful applicants will be ordered to Newport, R. I., for eight weeks of Officer Candidate Training and will be appointed ensigns in the Line or Supply Corps upon completion of the course. They will then be given an additional eight weeks' training after being commissioned.

Applicants must be at least 20 and under 27 years of age, a graduate of an accredited college or university, have no dependents under 18 years, meet the physical requirements and be citizens of the U. S., the Navy said.

Those who wish to apply must submit a written request to their commanding officers, outlining their qualifications.

Classes at the U. S. Naval School, Officer Candidate Training (W), will convene in July, November and March each year and deadline dates for the receipt of applications will be the 10th of May, September and January.

LANDSMAN TO RADM.

RAadm. John E. Wood, SC, USN, will retire 1 Apr. after 38 years' service.

Commanding officer of the Norfolk, Va., Naval Supply Center, Admiral Wood plans to make his home in Philadelphia, at which time it is expected he will be associated with industry in that city.

Admiral Wood's career in the Navy began in 1916 when he enlisted in the Pennsylvania Naval Militia. In 1917 he enrolled in the National Naval Volunteers. After active duty as a member of that organization he transferred to the Regular Navy in July, 1918, and has had the distinction of holding every rating and rank in the Navy from landsman to rear admiral.

Navy Seeks Reserve EM

Applications; No Exams

The Navy is seeking applications for enlistment or reenlistment in the Regular Navy from enlisted Reservists on active duty.

Those serving in the fire control technician, electronics technician, radio-man ratings or related emergency service rating, may apply for immediate enlistment in equal pay grade without taking an examination.

Reservists in these ratings who are in training and administrative billets may also apply, the Navy said. Applications should be forwarded to the Chief of Naval Personnel (Attn: Pers B223) through commanding officers. The Navy has asked commanding officers to make definite recommendations regarding the suitability of candidates.

Flying Radar Station

The Navy's newest flying radar station, Lockheed's WV-2 Super Constellation, was accepted this week for operational use by Cdr. J. N. Myers, USN, Commanding Officer of Airborne Early Warning Squadron Two.

WV-2, a modified version of the model now in use by the Navy, houses over six tons of the Navy's most powerful research radar and electronic detection equipment.

Oriskany Top Choice

Midshipmen of the U. S. Naval Academy's graduating class destined for Navy line commissions have begun choosing the ships aboard which they will serve as new ensigns.

First choice went to Midshipman Paul D. Stroop, jr., who elected duty aboard the Pacific Fleet attack aircraft carrier USS ORISKANY.

He is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Paul D. Stroop, sr., USN, of 275 J Ave., Coronado, Calif.

Of the 857 midshipmen scheduled to graduate on 4 June, approximately 338 will go directly to shipboard duty.

The Navy Department furnished the Academy with a list of 357 ships requiring junior officers. No two 1954 Academy graduates will be assigned to the same vessel.

Naval Aviation will get about 188 members of this year's graduating class. Forty-two graduates are scheduled to be commissioned in the Supply Corps.

Commissions in the Air Force will go to 211 graduates, with 107 of these scheduled for flight training and 104 slated for administrative, engineering and other ground billets.

Commissions in the Marine Corps will be given to about 63 members of the graduating class.

Four foreign midshipmen completing training at the Academy this June will be commissioned in the Armed Forces of their respective nations: 2 by Ecuador; one each by Peru and the Philippines.

CAP Increases Flights

Volunteer pilots and observers of the Civil Air Patrol flew 12,290 hours on search and rescue missions during 1953, Maj. Gen. Lucas V. Beau, USAF, CAP National Commander, has announced.

This amounted to more than 60 per cent of the total hours flown by all agencies participating in the 96 air searches ordered by Air Rescue Service, and was an increase of 30 per cent over the number of hours flown in 1952 on ARS-ordered missions.

CAP's volunteer crews racked up 6505 individual sorties in their single-engine planes, while on the same 96 missions, other participating agencies flew 7505 hours on 2642 sorties.

Gen. Puller Describes Amphibious Training

and (2) the training division.

TTU is one of several agencies complementing the primary responsibility of the Navy and Marine Corps, in accordance with the Key West Conference, which includes the continuing sponsorship and development of amphibious warfare, to include conduct of joint operations as well as training of all forces assigned for joint amphibious operations in accordance with policies and doctrines of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

A standard curriculum has been established for the conduct of amphibious instruction, however each training schedule is tailored to fulfill the needs of a particular trainee unit, based on previous experience of personnel and the unit's assigned mission.

Specialists Courses

At Coronado, specialist courses of instruction are designed primarily for individual officers and selected non-commissioned officers, enrolled in accordance with assigned MOS and job actually performed in the parent unit.

Instruction presented in "Resident" courses at the Coronado Naval Amphibious Base is continuous. Because of mobile training teams conducting amphibious instruction, in the field, a three-way division of instructor personnel is necessary in many schools in order to meet these commitments. Courses of instruction for amphibious staffs have ranged from RCT's to Division and even Corps level. Regular and reserve students of "Resident" courses represent officer and enlisted personnel from all branches of the Armed Forces. Four separate staff planning courses plus the regular specialist courses and an expanded summer training program for Marine Corps reserve units were conducted during 1953.

A similar program is scheduled for 1954. The wide variety of courses is typical of TTU and enables it to adapt itself to meet the requirements for any amphibious situation.

Normally, the level of amphibious training, conducted at west coast camps and the Far East, is for an RCT, reinforced. Amphibious instruction is presented in two phases: shore-based and afloat, allowing approximately 30 days to complete the training program for one reinforced regiment. Parallel training programs are presented for Marine and Army units whether located in the Far East or the United States.

Team in FE

Training in the Far East is conducted by Troop Training Team (TTT), Amphibious Group Western Pacific commanded by Brig. Gen. William W. Davies, USMC. This headquarters was established at Camp McGill, Honshu, Japan, in July 1952. An instructor group from TTU is temporarily attached to this headquarters every year to provide sufficient instructors to carry out the training program prescribed by higher authority.

TTT is under the general supervision and administrative control of the Commander, Amphibious Training Command, Pacific, and under operational control of the Commander, Naval Forces, Far East (exercised by the amphibious group in that area). Technical control of TTT is vested in the Commander, Amphibious Training Command, Pacific, via the Commanding General, Troop Training Unit, Pacific. This permanent training element maintains year around liaison in the Pacific. This permanent training element maintains year around liaison in the Far East with all units relative to the usual amphibious training to be conducted in that area.

Throughout the year, "Resident" embarkation and transport loading courses are conducted at Camp McGill, Japan, Troop Training Team headquarters. During the first half of 1953, instruction for naval gunfire spotting teams was presented at Camp McGill.

Designed and prefabricated at TTU in 1946, a portable sandtable for use in the field is unique among its instructional training aids. Scale models, controlled explosions and a movie type script realistically portray the principles and techniques of a regimental assault landing. Compactly packaged for transporting between trainee units, it can be assembled to accommodate more than 1000 spectators at one showing. Significant of this faculty has been the record attendance of over 100,000 military personnel at demonstrations presented during 1952 and 1953 at Coronado and the Far East. Presented to personnel at all levels of command of the Army, Navy, and Air Force of the United States and one foreign country, its reception has been followed with resounding praise for its practical approach to a difficult instructional problem.

From the middle of World War II through the Korean action, TTU instructional personnel have adapted themselves to demands of the times in a highly creditable manner. In 1950 members of Mobile Training Team Able, embarked upon an ordinary training mission in the Far East, found themselves in great demand during preparations for the Inchon and Wonsan landings and the evacuation from Hungnam. Though an unexpected activity, they welcomed the opportunity to demonstrate effectively, under combat conditions, the principles, doctrines, and

What it takes... TO BUILD THIS TEAM

Today's most powerful deterrents against aggression are the airmen and officers of the Strategic Air Command and their global B-36's. No combination of men and machines — by their mere existence — has ever been such a force for peace!

To build this team, Convair and the United States

Air Force developed production and training techniques unequalled in the history of aviation. From the beginning both the B-36 and its crews had "growth potential" designed into them. And instead of obsolescence, the atomic age made this team even more formidable in national defense.

Like the Air Force itself, Convair's goal is to achieve the maximum degree of performance... the Nth degree of air power... Engineering to the Nth power

The 1354th video production squadron of the Air Pictorial and Charting Service, Orlando, Fla., is kinescoping 40 "television shows" at Lackland AFB, Tex., for use as Air Force training films.

The squadron, composed of nine officers and 36 airmen, does its work from a mobile TV unit designed to travel around the country with equipment packed in three 35-foot buses.

The resulting films are black and white reproductions with sound which can be projected on any standard 16mm projector. It is cheaper and less time consuming than regular motion picture filming, the Air Force said.

And that's exactly what I'm getting by mailing in my regular deposit to the Armed Forces Medical Aid Association. I know that my wife and kids have top-notch hospitalization protection at the lowest possible damage to the pocket. Why? Because AFMAA is our own, non-profit, voluntary association.

Maybe that's why they call me I. M. Ready — because I'm all set in case any of the family goes to the hospital. I know they'll get payments for hospital room, for surgery, for doctors' hospital calls, for emergency accidents, and even for maternity after a ten months' waiting period.

The cost is only $5.50 a month with wife only; $8.00 with kids. Write — right now — to the address below for your free illustrated booklet. I. M. Ready — are you?

SAC's Non-Com Academies To Open About 1 April

Classes will begin about 1 April at all three of the Strategic Air Command's new Non-Com Officer Academies.

The Fifteenth Air Force Academy, scheduled to begin classes 29 March, at March AFB, Calif., will be the first to open. The Second Air Force Academy at Barksdale AFB, La., will follow 2 April, with the Eighth Air Force school at Bergstrom AFB, Tex., set for 5 April.

Sixty NCO's will attend each course. The academies, patterned after the NCO Academy pioneered by the Seventh Air Division in England, have been in the planning stage for four months.

A group of nine airmen and seven officers, headed by Maj. W. D. Johnson, chief of SAC's technical training branch, returned the first of the month from England where they visited and studied the operations of the Seventh Air Division Academy and a British NCO-type school at Halton, England. In addition, they toured the Seventh Army NCO Academy at Munich. The visiting group included the commandants and key instructors of the stateside academies.

Commandants of the new academies are: Second Air Force, Maj. Charles W. Sampson; Eighth Air Force, Maj. Richard S. Wilson; and Fifteenth Air Force, Maj. Robert B. Shea. Assistant directors of training, to be a top NCO at each academy, have not yet been named.

Maj. Arthur Jones, commandant of the Seventh Air Division school, accompanied the visiting group to the U. S. on temporary duty to assist in final plans.

AIRMEN PROMOTIONS SHOW STEADY INCREASE

Airmen promotions continue upwards. Newly released world-wide quotas authorize 47,800 boosts for the March-April period, compared with 40,239 for the January-February increment.

The new quotas are about 10,000 above the promotion limitations during the final months of 1953.

On a world-wide basis, the Air Force will make approximately 800 promotions to master sergeant in the new quotas, 2500 to technical sergeant, 8500 to staff sergeant, 14,000 to airman first class and 22,000 to airman second class.

The prior quotas were 717 to master sergeant, 2204 to technical sergeant, 7866 to staff sergeant, 12,455 to airman first class and 16,997 to airman second class.

Air Univ. Instructors Gather At Maxwell To Attend Policy-Developments Briefing

More than 40 Air University instructors from most of the 36 non-Air Force service schools where they are stationed attended a semi-annual conference at Maxwell AFB, Ala., 16-17 March, for briefings on current Air Force policies and developments.

Host of the program was the 3894th School Squadron, commanded by Col. Charles W. Johnstone, of which they are members.

The squadron is the keystone of an AU service which teaches Air Force doctrine and subjects pertaining to air power to more than 50,000 students in non-Air Force service schools.

Its highly selective personnel act as liaison agents through which education in Air Force subjects is made available to members of other military branches. The squadron also is the agency through which knowledge of new methods and techniques being taught by non-Air Force services flow back to the Air University.

By this system, the Air Force joins the other services in exchanging professional knowledge throughout the entire military establishment.

The conference was opened Tuesday by Brig. Gen. Dale O. Smith, Director of Education, Air University. He was followed by Col. Shannon Christian of the Air War College faculty, speaking on "Air Ground Relationship in Theater Tasks."

The program Wednesday included an address by Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Commander, Air University, a talk on air weapons by Col. John F. Babcock, and a discussion of the Air Force "new look" by Col. Jeff Mosley of Hq. USAF War Plans Division.

General C. A. Spaatz, retired, former Chief of Staff of the Air Force, was the honor guest at the conference dinner.

Members of the Squadron attending included Brig. Gen. H. T. Alness; Col. John C. Crosthwaite; James A. Isbell; Archie Higdon; Allen P. Forsyth; William T. Cumiskey; Thomas K. Hampton; Robert H. Strauss; L. M. Stanton; Van H. Slayden; and Dale D. Brannon.

Lt. Col. Glenn W. Taylor; Maurice J. Costello; Harris F. Krause; Orville B. Ross; Clarence R. McCourt; Philip Brooks; George V. Fagan; Richard L. Bisgard; Wendell J. Kelly; Elbert N. Stidd, Jr.; Howard T. Wright; Theodore C. Hoffman; William F. Duncan; Royal S. Thompson; and Ralph V. Hensch.

Majors Thomas F. Brubaker; James E. Sever; Herbert S. Holdsambeck; Norman H. Smith; William G. McDonald; John N. Higley; Chester C. Ishmael; Arthur Williamson; Stephen J. King; Maurice DeSchepper; Gerald Linscheld; William Englert; Ralph E. Sexton.

Also Col. Clarence D. Wheeler; Col. Edward H. Nigro; Lt. Col. Herbert O. Derr; Capt. James R. Allen and Capt. Carl E. Weyland.

AF Base Comdrs. Ordered To Stress Reenlistments

The Air Force has ordered base commanders to establish active and vigorous programs for reenlistments.

The program, outlined in Regulation 39-2, also calls for concurrent effort and attention to be given to aviation cadet, officer candidate and such other specialized programs commensurate with the capabilities and facilities of the base concerned.

"Because reenlistment programs bear directly upon the operational effectiveness of the Air Force in the conservation of trained manpower, these programs will be given priority over other base functions of lesser relative importance," the directive stated.

Col. Beck Gets Bomb Wing, Col. Gray Takes Offutt ABW

Col. A. J. Beck, 39, commander of the 3902d ABW, Offutt AFB, Neb., will leave in May to assume command of the 340th Bombardment Wing at Sedalia, Mo.

New commander for the Offutt wing-base organization will be Col. William L. Gray, 37, who has been serving as deputy commander. The deputy post will be filled by Col. Charles J. Beck, present director of operations.

Col. A. J. Beck is a graduate of Southern Methodist University Law School and was a practicing attorney before entering the Air Force. When the Strategic Air Command Headquarters moved to Offutt in the fall of 1948, he came there from Andrews AFB, Md.

Requirements Listed for AF Judge Advocate Duties

The Air Force has issued a regulation which is effective 1 April, establishing eligibility requirements and procedures for application and appointment of commissioned officers in the Regular Air Force with a view to designation for the performance of Judge Advocate duties.

The order, AFR 36-7, provides for applications to be submitted during the period 1 Jan. to 28 Feb. and 1 July to 31 Aug. Applications received by the Director of Personnel Procurement and Training, Headquarters, USAF, other than during these periods will be returned without action.

Initial field testing under this Regulation will be conducted during the period 2 April to 16 April 1954. Thereafter, field testing will commence 30 days after the opening date of each application period. During testing periods, which will be approximately 60 days, each applicant will complete the USAF Aptitude Test, Biographical Inventory, and comply with other pertinent instructions.

Move SAC Comptroller To Duty at Pentagon

Maj. Gen. Robert O. Cork, USAF, SAC Comptroller since August 1948 and SAC Chief of Plans for a year previous, will be reassigned from Offutt AFB, Nebr., to the Office Deputy Chief of Staff, Comptroller, at USAF Headquarters in June.

A graduate of the advanced management course at Harvard, General Cork, who will be 47 on 13 April, received his regular commission as a second lieutenant in January 1930, two years after graduation from Wayne University.

ANY MILITARY LOAD ANYWHERE by FLYING BOXCAR

Only airplane designed and built from stem to stern to handle big bulk military loads is the C-119 "Flying Boxcar". Fully equipped troops, guns, ammunition, road-building machinery, helicopters . . . these and countless other types of bulk military loads are shipped to every part of the world at an impressively low cost per ton mile delivered in the Fairchild C-119.

Designed especially to load, fly and unload big bulky cargoes, the "Flying Boxcar" is flying everywhere in the service of America's Armed Forces and those of the United Nations.

In production soon, the C-123 advance base military carrier.

More Careerism—Less Expenditures. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, as shown by his testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee, will place principal reliance upon the "more defense for less money" argument to secure Congressional backing for the forthcoming slate of legislation to improve career incentives.

In taking this tack, Mr. Wilson is on sound ground: attracting good men and keeping them in the Service will most definitely save money and provide stronger defenses. It will cut down the shameful turn-over in personnel, which necessitates huge training programs to fit men for their jobs, only to see them return to civilian life as soon as they legally can do so. In a matter of only a year or so a good program of career incentives would raise the percentage of trained and experienced men so that the over-all efficiency of the Armed Forces would be vastly increased and costs lowered.

Furthermore, it is an argument which Mr. Wilson, with his vast experience in industry, is well qualified to expound authoritatively. Properly presented, it is an argument which appeals particularly to the men in Congress, committed as they are to a program of economy and efficiency.

It is encouraging that Mr. Wilson has neglected no opportunity to put the benefits of the program before Congress and the White House. The same applies to his Assistant Secretary, Dr. John A. Hannah, who has worked so diligently to further the program, and to the Secretaries of the military departments.

Certainly, the outlook for constructive action is better now than at any time since the new Administration came into power.

The "Military Mind." For many years the term "military mind" has been used by pacifists and other anti-military groups as a term of derision. Invariably, the phrase was used to ridicule defense plans and methods of operation.

It has remained for Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens to give the term a proper definition. Rather than deny there is such a thing, Mr. Stevens states proudly that there is a "military mind" and that it is a good thing for the country.

"It is a mind," the Secretary of the Army declared, "which seeks to anticipate and prepare for every eventuality. It is a mind capable of dealing brilliantly with the special problems which concern the military security of the Nation. It is a mind conditioned by courage, by a tradition of selfless service, by the highest standards of character. It is, in short, a mind which measures every action by the yardstick of 'Duty—Honor—Country.'"

That definition should be posted in the halls of Congress and spread throughout the country. It is another evidence of the devotion and forthrightness of the public official who was the first to stick his neck out by defending Service personnel against attacks by one of the strongest men in Congress.

SAC's Eighth Birthday. The Strategic Air Command—the New Look's main bulwark for swift and devastating retaliation against any possible aggressor—observed its eighth anniversary this week. In those few years, it has taken the hard-won lessons of World War II, combined them with the new and progressively more powerful aircraft and electronic devices constantly coming from the manufacturers, and welded a trained and mobile striking force vastly different from those that operated against Germany and Japan.

It has been the constant and intensive SAC training program which has made the most of our advanced materiel. In routine training operations during the past year alone, SAC's long-range bombers have theoretically "destroyed" industrial centers in almost every city in the United States with a population of more than 25,000. Simulated bombing missions were carried out during daylight hours and at night. Almost all were flown at extreme altitudes, usually with the planes too high to be seen or heard. Each mission was scored and crew performance evaluated. Although attack scores are not made public, General Curtis E. LeMay, SAC Commander, has stated that the crews have demonstrated bombing accuracy well within the effective range of the bomb.

Long range mobility also has been a major part of SAC's training program. Combat wings with its three numbered Air Forces are frequently deployed as complete tactical units to overseas bases for periods of training. In the past year, these far-ranging planes have logged more than 790,000 hours in the air. Air refueling hook-ups, by means of which the range of medium bombers and strategic fighters is stretched enormously, have amounted to the equivalent of one such refueling operation every 15 minutes, day and night, during 1953. One B-47 wing crossed from Limestone, Me., to a base in England in less than five hours. After a period of training in England, the unit returned non-stop to its home base in Florida. Other B-47 wings have since rotated to England and North Africa for mobility experience.

Thus, SAC's growth in size and effectiveness has been genuinely spectacular over its eight-year existence. In view of the great reliance now being placed upon it by current national policies, this is particularly gratifying and a high tribute to the officers and airmen who comprise it.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Revelation that the Army Air Forces will turn back to the Ground and Service Forces a total of about 36,000 men who had volunteered for aerial duty after having received basic training in the other forces is the first strong outward evidence that the Army Ground Force is being substantially strengthened in light of the lessons from the Italian and Russian fronts and the pending opening of a western front in Europe.

50 Years Ago—The splendid service rendered by those who obtained commissions in the Army following the Civil War was abundant proof of their fitness for command. The test of war service is one which cannot be equalled by any system of examination or marking that may be devised in a time of peace. The fact of the qualifications of an officer as developed under war conditions is absolute.

90 Years Ago—The Navy Department has given its endorsement to the publication of a new system of maneuvering fleets under steam, which, if generally adopted, promises to introduce into our forces afloat the regularity and precision which characterizes tactical formation of troops upon land.

USMA '81 Survivor

Editor, THE JOURNAL:
Correction, please!

The statement in the death notice of Col Charles A. Bennett (JOURNAL, 20 March) that he was "the last surviving member of the West Point Class of 1881" is like the report of Mark Twain's death.

The exaggeration consists in overlooking the fact that Maj. Gen. Henry C. Hodges, Jr., Ret., of Stamford, Conn., is very much alive and in remarkably fine condition for one who will in a few weeks attain the ripe age of 94. For a number of years he has been the oldest graduate present at June week at the Academy, and we who love him hope that he will continue this activity for years to come.

Consider the Specialists

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Now that the Army is taking official recognition of leadership ability in enlisted men by limiting NCO grades to those who are definitely qualified, the prestige of noncoms is sure to rise. It seems to me that this would be a good time to give suitable recognition to specialist abilities acquired prior to service.

Certain medical officers are given constructive credit for education beyond the four years of college—so that Jones, who comes in as a physician, will have approximately the same rank as Smith, his classmate in premedical college who went directly into the service upon receipt of his BS degree.

If college-graduate chemists enlist (voluntarily or otherwise) and are used as chemists, for example, is it fair that they should have to spend the same time in each grade as their high school classmates who came in four years previously and are by this time Sergeants?

I should like to recommend that a study be made which will result in a change of the "time-in-grade" requirements for specialists who have had advanced training outside the services and are being used in those specialties. Now that their military leadership ability is not of primary importance, they should receive pay commensurate with their value to the service — which is considerably more than that of most high school graduates.

Overseas Per Diem

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I sincerely hope the Defense Budget for FY 1955 will be amended to exclude Section 640 of Public Law 91 which terminated overseas per diem allowances and foreign duty pay for any service member whose home of record at time of entry into active service was in any territory or United States possession and while stationed therein.

This cut has meant a loss of approximately $120 per month. The time will come when we must all sacrifice but I can't agree with the discriminatory sacrifices of the above mentioned law. My buddy whose rank and job are identical to mine, but whose home of record is the state of Washington, receives all benefits, but since I am Alaskan I lose them. The gentlemen who introduced this law should have performed a little research and investigation to determine whether we Alaskans can buy a can of peas or pound of butter cheaper than our neighbors from the states. I defy anyone to tell the difference between Alaskans and United States citizens.

defense ON CAPITOL HILL

PENTAGON LEADERS are pleased with Congressional action this year on military legislation, particularly measures affecting career opportunities for Servicemen. They point out that the Arends Bill covering officer temporary promotions and retirements was given careful but prompt consideration by the House Armed Services Committee and cleared the House with no difficulties whatsoever. It's now headed for early consideration by the Senate Committee, probably next week.

THE W. O. CAREER BILL, like the Arends measure, also is en route to enactment following detailed analysis by the House Committee. Pentagon civilian and military officials who have been testifying on Capitol Hill are struck by the enthusiasm of legislators for action to raise attractiveness of military service.

MUCH CREDIT is being given to the enlightened leadership in these matters of Chairmen Dewey Short and Leverett Saltonstall of the Armed Services Committees, who are receiving virtually unanimous support from Committee members. Big factor also is the spadework being accomplished by staff members of both Committees, who are assisting in the compilation of voluminous background material for the Committee hearings. As a result, there have been few hitches.

REMAINING TO BE SEEN now is how quickly the Defense Department can get other legislation to Congress. Examples: the dependent care bill, reenlistment bonus increase, added housing, dislocation allowance. These and other measures will cost money and that is where the chips will go down in the campaign to raise Service Attractiveness. But with White House support and the demonstrated interest of the Armed Services Committees, the picture appears bright, although with an election upcoming in November, Congressmen will want to get home as quickly as they can. This means that there is need for quick action in sending Defense legislation to the Hill.

THE WOMBLE REPORT, which continues to be kept in sharp focus on Capitol Hill, was referred to this week by Representative McCormack (D-Mass.).

who said that if the group "should re-survey the problem of military morale today they would undoubtedly find that morale had deteriorated even further."

Asserting that "the storm of charges and countercharges now raging in Washington over the United States Army is a national disgrace," Mr. McCormack said "no one can win this fight to determine who is lying and who is telling the truth except our enemies abroad." He said "there should be a nonpartisan feeling of concern with what is happening to one of our greatest institutions — the United States Army. . . . We face the threat, in the midst of international tension, of serious damages to our military institutions from irresponsible forces within our own country."

MILITARY PAY RAISE PROPOSALS have won support of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, whose resolution endorsing a pay hike had been inserted in the Congressional Record by Representative Bob Wilson (R-Calif.) who had sponsored legislation to increase military pay scales. "More and more organizations and cities interested in the Armed Services are sending in resolutions requesting Congressional action this year on restoration of fringe benefits and an increase in military pay as a means of stemming the alarming drop of morale and subsequent decrease in reenlistments to the lowest period in history," the California legislator said.

DENIAL OF BENEFITS to Servicemen who refuse to take loyalty oaths has strong support in Congress, notably in the Senate Armed Services Committee, which has been looking into the problem. Assistant General Counsel Stephen S. Jackson of the Defense Department has been instructed to draft such legislation. There is a strong feeling in military circles, however, that it may be a difficult thing to take away benefits under such circumstances. The question is asked, for example, what would be done to an officer who has served satisfactorily for more than 20 years (and who thus is eligible for retirement benefits) if he declined to sign the loyalty oath. Would he receive retirement pay? The answer presumably would be "yes," unless he were court-martialed and dismissed from the Service.

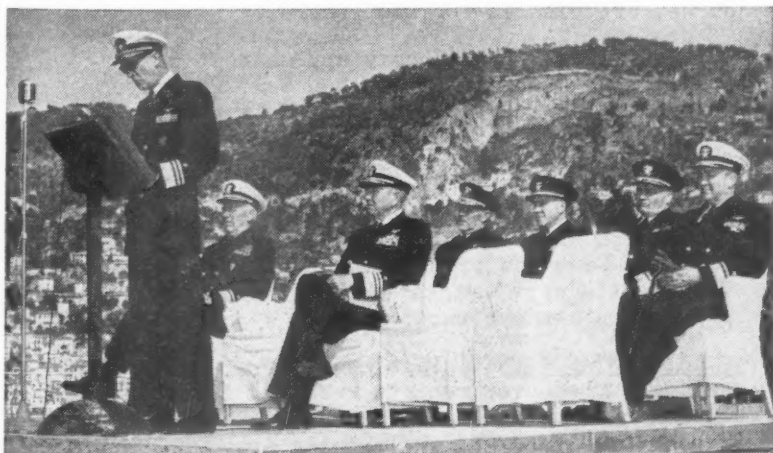

Moscow Resumes Frowning On NATO Members— COMMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

IN a succession of formally delivered notes at the week-end Russia warned The Netherlands, Turkey, and Greece against continuing the measures they are taking for their own and the common defense—the Netherlands rebuked for their authorization of a squadron of U. S. Air Force fighters on Dutch soil, Turkey for its new alliance with Pakistan, Greece for its lively cooperation with the United States. With customary self-righteousness the Kremlin points to its own behavior as being "unswervingly and consistently" in the interest of world peace, and refers sternly to the lesser nations "taking the consequences" of their behavior. This, from a nation which since 1945 has overrun and shackled a dozen nearby countries (of which Yugoslavia is the only one to regain independence), is a piece of monumental impudence. The only visible reason for the NATO nations' defensive arrangements, or for NATO's whole existence, is the ruthlessness of Russia's past conduct and present threat. As a result all three notes have been received with a good deal of calm, and the probable effect will be to speed the implementation of the agreements, not to block it. Pakistan, it will be recalled, had previously been "warned" by Russia and also reproved by neighboring India; neither complaint altered Pakistan's defense program, which includes cooperation with Turkey in a Middle-East pact, and a request for a considerable amount of military assistance from the United States. The Turk-Pakistan arrangement is made entirely outside the NATO alliance, but is patterned after both the purpose and the general practice of NATO. It is the nearest practicable approach to the original program for a five-power defensive treaty for the security of the Middle East and Suez, totally blocked by Egypt's unreadiness to participate at that time.

THE MIDDLE EAST remains vulnerable, from within and without, and the compact which Turkey and Pakistan have arrived at, plus the necessarily slow beginning of our aid to Pakistan, must be recognized as little more than a token of what is sought. There is a wide space between Turkey and its new partner to the east, and that space is likely to remain unfilled for a long time to come. Iran's position is infinitely better than it was a year ago, but it is still insecure; the purely Arab states remain a problem, not only because of their own weakness in organized forces of use in a modern war, but because of the Arabs' abiding and united hostility to Israel. The latter young nation's strength is lousy, as was demonstrated in the recent brief war with the Arab league but, in the uncertain armistice which still obtains, Israel's chief military concern is with its neighbors and not with the larger world-struggle. For the visible future, the West's only reliable hope in that huge area lies in this new compact, and in the two bastions thus set up. A great deal of arming and training will be needed before the Middle East offers any substantial assurance against adversity in that ancient battleground.

INDO-CHINA has occupied attention on three continents, and will for some time to come. Within its own geographical limits that distant land this month has provided the liveliest local fighting in the course of the French Union's seven years war with the Vietminh rebels; in Paris the Vietnam delegates have continued to negotiate over the degree of independence which France will accord the Indo-Chinese states; in Washington the visit of General Paul Ely and his conversations with the President, the Secretaries of State and Defense, and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, among others, have set off a series of speculative fire-crackers whose explosive energy fortunately was chiefly expended in sound. The explosions around the outpost of Dienbienphu were and are more serious, and at the moment of writing there is no assurance of the outcome. But our own military people have believed from the beginning that the French Union's forces should be able to hold out, even against the all-out onslaught of rebel forces well supplied and led with great determination by field commanders who were clearly instructed to expend all they had in quest of victory. The rebels have expended a great deal, but victory thus far has been denied and—on the basis of our own experience in Korea where it was found the Chinese tactics achieve success in a few days or not at all, owing to severe limits in re-supply and replacement—there is solid reason for believing that the present fierce onslaught will end without any rebel success proportionate to their expenditure of men and ammunition. As we found in Korea, it is likely there will be another onslaught, but if the French are able during a lull between attacks to rebuild their own defensive strength, the outpost should be able to hold out again.

HO CHI-MINH'S AIM, it seems apparent, has been (again on the Korean pattern) to gain as much as he can, at whatever cost, on the eve of the five-power negotiations scheduled for Geneva next month. A clear rebel victory at this time, however localized, would heighten the prestige of the rebels and strengthen Red China's bargaining power at Geneva; even a tactical defeat would constitute little more than a stand-off, politically viewed, and would at least worry the French enough, Moscow may have surmised, to increase France's eagerness for a settlement not only of the wearying Indo-China troubles but of other issues. It was the larger picture, it seems fair to say, which was General Ely's justification for the American visit; obviously if matters of additional American supply or training had been his primary purpose he would have brought with him certain specialists in such matters. For that reason it is a bit unfortunate that American public attention was so intensely focused on the question of what America intends to do in the way of providing more planes, more spare parts, and more technical instruction. It goes without saying that if France wishes more of anything (and it is France which must decide in this case) it will be moved to Indo-China with dispatch, for our policy of aiding the French Union was established long ago at a level higher than the military's, and our ability to extend that aid is not in question. The larger worries about Indo-China will not be fully determined on the battlefield or even in the supply and training areas, but in the political councils. But it is most gratifying to see that the military factor is in better shape than it seemed to be a very short time ago. General Navarre's two-year plan, now half-way through, is doing all right.

TOP-LEVEL CHANGES in supervision of Defense Dept. manpower policies will take place this Summer. Maj. Gen. James F. Collins, military deputy to Dr. Hannah, goes to Alaska in August. Dr. Hannah himself is expected to end his Pentagon service this Summer and return to full-time duties as president of Michigan State College. Likely successor for Gen. Collins is Maj. Gen. John B. Murphy, USA, now First Army CofS, who has had much personnel experience. He will report to the Pentagon in early June.

SEEN AMONG TOP PROSPECTS for Dr. Hannah's Defense post are two Service Assistant Secretaries. They are H. Lee White and Hugh M. Milton, II, Air Force and Army manpower chiefs, respectively. Defense Sec'y Wilson has shown a desire to promote from within the ranks whenever possible. He is known to hold both of these officials in high regard. In their present assignments, both Mr. White and Gen. Milton have gained broad experience in military personnel problems, including those affecting the Reserve Forces, certain to be of increasing importance in the next year as a "New Look" in Reserve Forces is undertaken.

AIRBORNE EMPHASIS in Army training is certain to be bolstered by forthcoming assignment of Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, CG U.S. Army Alaska, to Field Forces Hdqs. at Ft. Monroe, Va. He got in on the ground floor of airborne warfare at Ft. Benning before WWII and subsequently has filled numerous airborne billets.

FLYING PAY WILL GO UP if the Budget Bureau and finally Congress give their O.K. to a current Pentagon proposal. Following recommendation of the Strauss Commission, the plan would put flying pay on a percentage basis, ranging from 47 per cent of base pay for a second lieutenant to 16 per cent for a major general. In dollars, it would mean an increase for the second lieutenant from $100 to $104 and from $10 to $154 for the major general.

BIGGEST INCREASE would go to low-ranking airmen on flying status, where all below E-5 would be raised to $52. Flying pay for an E-2 would be increased from $37.50 to $52.

A HUMP PROBLEM has the Air Force worried. Too many of its officers have between 9-13 years service. This resulted from the post WWII integration. On the other hand, there's a shortage of Regulars with 14 or more years' service. One answer to the problem is to gain Congressional approval for exceeding the Regular officer limitation—presently 27,500.

THE ARMY ALSO wants to increase its authorized strength of Regular officers. There's some chance that an all-Service bill on Regular officer strengths may be sent to Capitol Hill this year, provided of course that the Budget Bureau goes along.

CONCURRENT TRAVEL progress is being made in most areas of the world, but the notable exception is the Far East Command. And there's no reason to anticipate any significant improvement in the picture for that area, since there are no known plans for greatly expanding available housing in Japan.

NEW ARMY UNIFORM announcement probably will be made by mid-April. The gray-green garb, well supported in the recent world wide preference survey, and subsequently endorsed by both Gen. Ridgway and Sec'y Stevens, also is said to have won favor with Defense Dept. authorities. Guess is that key members of Congress will be briefed on uniform plans, after which plans will be announced officially.

THE EISENHOWER JACKET will be eliminated in the Army's new uniform look. However, an Air Force spokesman said this week that his Service has no present plan to discard the Eisenhower Jacket, which had the distinction of winning almost a 100 per cent rejection rating during the Army's recent uniform preference survey. The AF modified the Jacket several years ago, making it roomier and longer to eliminate the "gap-itis" at the waistline.

THE NO. 2 ARMY PIO post will go to Brig. Gen. Frederic J. Brown instead of Brig. Gen. Paul Weyrauch as previously announced. Both are now on duty in Germany. Gen. Weyrauch instead will be assigned to the XVIII Airborne Corps at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

WHILE BUDGET HEARINGS on Capitol Hill are indicating that substantial changes in Defense requests are not likely, Pentagon officials are wary of work being done by a group of consultants engaged by Representative John Taber (R-NY), House Appropriations Committee chairman, to probe various items of defense expenditures. These "extra-curricular" inquiries undoubtedly will have considerable influence when the Committee starts marking up the money bill.

THE LOYALTY OATH REQUIREMENT imposed upon Army officers and warrant officers—many of them veterans of WWI, WWII and Korea—is the cause of some disgruntled reaction, particularly since thus far it's a unilateral proposition. There is recognition among those who protest that recent events make the decision understandable, but nonetheless, as individuals, there are those who are unhappy over having to sign the oath—some of whom, of course, are cleared for "top secret."

ARMY SEC'Y STEVENS won heavy applause at the National Press Club last week when Gen. Ridgway, addressing newsmen, said the American people would be "deeply proud" of the Sec'y "when the full story of unfolding events becomes known." This remark brought strong applause. On two other occasions—at the banquets of the White House Correspondents Association and the White House Photographers Association—mention of Mr. Stevens' name resulted in enthusiastic applause, in which President Eisenhower was a leading participant.

AT THE PENTAGON, officials who several weeks ago were disturbed over reports received from the field concerning depressed morale as a result of the free-swinging charges against the Army now report that there's been a definite upswing. These officials say that the stand taken by the Sec'y is now winning for him widespread admiration in Army ranks.

tension period.

Congress will be asked to amend the Act to permit those with 18 or more years' service to make their decision up to one year after enactment (1 Nov. 1953) instead of 180 days.

Defense authorities report that large numbers of personnel who had decided not to participate in the USCOA plan are changing their minds following comprehensive briefings on the program.

In connection with the extension proposal, THE JOURNAL has received the following communication from Col. George B. Bryon, USAFR, who has been active in formulation of USCOA and in explaining its features to military personnel.

Editor, The Journal:

On March 17 I dispatched the following telegram to the Senate and House Military Affairs Committees and the Defense Department:

"As one who suggested the basic principles of the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act of 1953 to the Joint Military Affairs Committee, the Air Force and Army in letter dated July 1947 and lately have lectured on its benefits, I appeal for action which will defer the 30 April deadline date for elections of options for 30 or 60 days. I understand explanatory pamphlets were only recently delivered and may not have reached all military personnel affected by present deadline date. From personal observation I know military officers outside Washington need more time to make intelligent elections under the Act which will benefit their families at no cost to the government. Submit such deferred deadline date will be of benefit to active and reserve personnel with 18 or more years of service.

George Bryon, 2 Park Avenue, Manhasset, N. Y."

The House Committee acknowledged my telegram promptly, and their reply included the following heartening information:

"On the basis of the experience to date, it would appear that an extension is necessary. There has been a most satisfactory acceptance of the program in the immediate vicinity of Washington and I feel certain that that has been due to the fact that it has been possible to give more complete information on the merits of the plan locally than in the field. This seems to be borne out by the further fact that the percentages of acceptances of the plan decreases as the distance increases.

"I have been advised by the Department of the Navy that legislation which would extend the deadline is now being processed through the Department of Defense. It will be presented to the Committee in the immediate future and I anticipate speedy and favorable action by this Committee."

Continued GROWTH and PROGRESS revealed in 32nd Annual Report of

UNITED SERVICES AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION

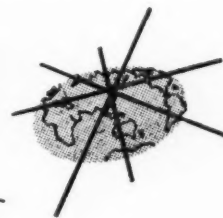

It is gratifying to report that 1953 was one of the most successful years in the 32 years history of the Association.

During 1953 the Association wrote $18,751,449.35 in automobile and household insurance premiums, an increase of $5,691,212.36 over 1952. This increase in business of 43.58% was the largest premium volume of new business written in any year of the Association's history.

Several factors enter into this very satisfactory showing. In 1952 the Association extended its services to the Continent of Europe, thus permitting many officers to continue their policies with the Association when ordered to Europe. Many other officers took out their first policies with the Association because of this territorial extension. Further, persons in active military service continued to find it difficult to obtain insurance through normal channels. The Association is particularly geared to serve this type of risk as the increase in the total number of members shows. As of December 31, 1953 there were 179,840 members carrying 227,380 policies, reflecting an increase of 34.31% in members and 33.71% in policies.

THE MILITARY GENIUS OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

By Brigadier-Gen. COLIN R. BALLARD
This book is one of the great military classics about the Civil War. It explains Lincoln's influence on the strategy of that conflict and proves that he not only chose good generals, but that he was himself an excellent (if completely unconventional) strategist. He understood the higher strategy of war as a whole, and Gen. Ballard demolishes the legend that Lincoln was a politician "whose bungling interference hampered his generals."

THE CUSTER MYTH

A Source Book of Custeriana
By Col. W. A. GRAHAM, U.S.A., Ret.
For years military historians have tried to unravel the story and explain exactly what did happen on that fateful June afternoon in 1876, when Gen. Custer and five companies of U. S. Cavalry were annihilated by Sitting Bull's hordes. Realizing the need for a carefully documented book that would impartially present all of the original and authentic source material, Col. Graham has here assembled a fascinating, historically accurate account of Custer's last battle.

Limited Source Specialties Are To Be Used In Specialty

The Air Force has directed that all officers possessing a limited resource specialty be utilized in that specialty.

The order, contained in Regulation 36-75, includes those officers who possess a limited resource specialty at the entry level, and who have performed duty in that specialty for six months or longer.

Every effort, the Air Force said, will be made to continue assignment of officers in limited resource specialties who were awarded such a designation at the entry level based on formalized education or training.

Officers who possess a limited resource specialty will be assigned to staff, command or instructor duties only when the position to be filled specifically requires an officer qualified in that specialty.

The Regulation applies to all male officers serving in grades below colonel except medical officers, chaplains, or officers designated or certified by the Judge Advocate General, USAF, and to all WAF officers serving in grades below lieutenant colonel.

During this service, he was detailed to the Fencing School at Joinville. Mr. Vauthier achieved wide renown as a fencing master, maintaining his own school in Paris from 1887 to 1893, the Cercle d'Esclime de la Madeleine. Among his pupils there were famous names such as Sarah Bernhardt, and Edmond Rostand, French poet who wrote "Cyrano de Bergerac."

In 1893, the law firm of Coudert Brothers of New York was instrumental in bringing Mr. Vauthier to the United States. For ten years he was the fencing master of the New York Fencing Club. His work with this group brought him to the attention of the authorities at West Point and, in 1903, he became the fencing master at the Academy. Mr. Vauthier continued in this position until February 1916. Among his many pupils were Captains Eisenhower, Bradley, Clark, and Gruenther.

In 1916, Mr. Vauthier became an instructor in French at West Point. He taught cadets in successive classes until his retirement in 1942.

Mr. Vauthier is survived by his second wife, Mrs. Martha L. Vauthier, 246 East Main Street, Bergenfield, N. J. A funeral mass was held in the Chapel of the Holy Trinity, West Point, on 19 March and was followed by burial in the Post Cemetery.

Col. Charles R. Finley, USA-Ret.

Major Zuppann, a 1943 graduate of West Point, was on temporary duty in a B-47 flying school in Wichita, Kans., at the time of his death. Major Zuppann completed 65 combat missions in B-26 planes over Europe during WW II.

His post-war tours of duty have included assignments in this country and Belgium.

He also was a graduate of the Adjutant General's School at Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., and the Air Command and Staff School at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

He is survived by his parents, Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Lloyd Zuppann of San Antonio; his widow Mrs. Alanna Devereux Zuppann, Ft. Benning, Ga.; his grandmother and two aunts.

Psy. Warfare Officers

To Study At Universities

The Army revealed this week that academic training on the postgraduate level will be conducted in civilian educational institutions for psychological warfare officers.

The program, outlined in Special Regulation 350-230-65, calls for the maximum number of qualified officers to be selected and enrolled in a civilian school for the program of instruction.

This program will augment in-service school training and provide essential training which is not available within the service. The primary objective of the program is to provide adequately trained personnel for psychological warfare staff assignments on higher staffs, and qualified instructors for psychological warfare training within the service. The training will last one semester at university postgraduate level.

Courses currently being conducted are at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.

techniques they were prepared to teach all Armed Forces for joint amphibious operations.

Travel to Far East

Personnel assigned to TTU spend a good portion of their assignment traveling between trainee units and in the Far East. During 1952 and 1953 instructor personnel of TTU have trained 14 RCT's and RLT's and have participated in 14 landing exercises in Japan, Formosa, and Korea, to observe the effectiveness of their instruction.

Reflecting the principle of unification, Troop Training Unit, Pacific, has been able to adapt its instructional material and teaching techniques for presentation to any branch of the Armed Forces. The training requirements of Army units, to permit them to participate in amphibious exercises, have been given considerable attention in the development of instructional techniques. The organization of TTU will permit rapid expansion in the event of an emergency so as to provide a means of training large units in amphibious operations; this expansion to take place without loss in efficiency or high quality of training for which TTU, Pacific, has become well known in the Far East and on the west coast of the United States.

The Troop Training Unit is ready now to respond to emergency demands for expanding its activities in preparation for any joint amphibious operation.

Aero Medical Association Annual Meeting Monday

The 25th annual meeting of the Aero Medical Association which begins 29 Mar. in the Hotel Statler, Washington, D. C., will feature exhibits by 25 commercial concerns as well as scientific exhibits of the Army, Navy, Air Force and the Canadian Defense Research Board.

Sixteen foreign nations have appointed delegations to attend the three-day meeting, and more than 30 leading physicians and scientists from these countries are expected to attend. The Association is a non-profit organization, international in scope, and composed of both military and civilian physicians and scientists. Its function is to further the advance of the science and art of aviation medicine by stimulating investigation and study, by the free exchange of the knowledge thus gained, and to establish and maintain close cooperation between the many branches of science concerned with aeronautical development and progress. Its president is Rear Adm. Bertram Groesbeck, jr, MC, USN-Ret., director of the Indiana State Department of Health.

RAdm. Groesbeck

In addition to the exhibits which will be on display, the program committee, under the chairmanship of Col. Robert J. Benford, USAF (MC), has arranged for the presentation of 56 scientific papers and discussions. The subjects which will be presented have been selected on the basis of their immediate interest and will include the latest developments in aviation medicine. The chief air force medical officers of Australia, Canada, Denmark, Sweden, England, Italy, Switzerland and Thailand will participate in the scientific program and are scheduled to present papers.

In addition to the papers which will be presented, the following exhibits have been prepared: The Air Force will display exhibits on USAF High Altitude Biological Research, Experimental Air Transportable Respirator, USAF Aviation Medicine Residency Training Program, and Aeromedical Aspects of Noise. The Navy's exhibits portray the role of naval aviation medicine research and development and, in addition, the Navy's Special Devices Center will demonstrate its varied interests in training devices and human engineering. Also, Capt. Richard B. Phillips, MC, USN, and his medical staff of the Naval Air Reserve Training Command, will present a pictorial exhibit on aircraft accidents.

The Army's Frankford Arsenal will display some of the release systems for bomb and stores ejectors of personnel escape systems for modern military aircraft which were developed at that activity over the past decade.

The Canadian Defense Research Board will display exhibits of: 1) A mock-up of a suggested Navigator's Compartment for Multi-Engine Aircraft designed to include a work desk and increase storage space as well as creating a standby crash position; 2) Demonstration of Angular Type Numbers designed to permit increased legibility under difficult viewing conditions, and 3) Charts of Air to Air Visibility of Aircraft in the Upper Atmosphere.

The Royal Canadian Air Force will show aircrew accoutrements, survival kits and new test equipment presently in use by RCAF.

Army Chief Nurses Confer in D. C., Col. Bryant, Lt. Col. Colhoun Preside

Col. Roger G. Prentiss, MC, Executive Officer, represented the Surgeon General of the Army in welcoming Nurse Corps Chief Nurses at their three-day annual conference 22 March.

Further greetings were extended by Col. Ruby F. Bryant, Chief of the Army Nurse Corps, assisted in presiding at the sessions and introducing the speakers by Lt. Col. Rosalie D. Colhoun, Deputy Chief of the Corps.

On Monday afternoon, Brig. Gen. Don C. Faith, USA, (ret.) associate professor of educational psychology at George Washington University, spoke on what he considers the four basic considerations in human relations: (1) people differ very greatly from one another and from all other people and must be treated differently; (2) more people can be inspired to do more work by being made to feel important through recognition and participation than by any other method; (3) a great deal of human behavior must be accounted for by reasons other than logical; (4) only persons who like people can work effectively with other people, those who do not like people should find other types of work.

Col. Anthony J. Zolenas, Jr., Assistant Inspector General of the Office of the Surgeon General, also spoke on Monday. He told the chief nurses how to simplify the handling of "quarters funds" and the importance of keeping every record pertinent to such moneys. He followed an absorbing professional panel discussion conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth K. Porter, president of the American Nurses Association and Miss Ella Best, executive secretary of the organization. They are consultants on nursing to the Surgeon General of the Army. Another such consultant, Miss Agnes Gelinas, chairman of the Nursing Department, Skidmore College, New York, reported on the growth of acceptance of professional accreditation for schools of nursing in the United States over the past five years.

Col. Bryant

On Tuesday, two panels presented by Army Nurse Corps officers were led by Maj. Robena Anderson, ANC, Chief Nurse, 2d Army Hqs., whose topic was "plan for improved patient care" and by Capt. Eileen McCarthy, ANC, whose assignment was "organization of the nursing service." Several members of Colonel Bryant's headquarters staff also spoke on Tuesday, including Lt. Col. Thelma Munn, ANC, on procurement; Maj. Graham Price on education and training; and Maj. Harriet Werley, ANC, on career guidance.

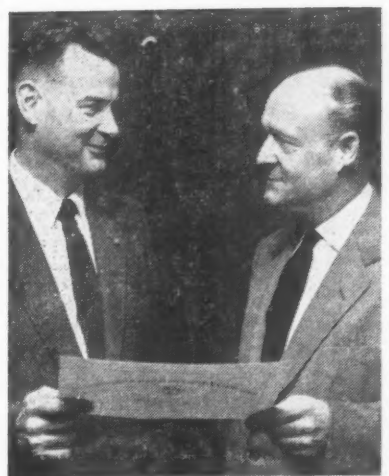

Lt. Col. Katherine B. Hayes, ANC, Chief of Nursing Service at Walter Reed Army Hospital, spoke on the utilization of clinical technicians found most advantageous for Class II hospitals. The matter of assignment preference and other aspects of personnel assignment were discussed by Lt. Col. Mabel Stott, ANC, Chief, ANC Nursing Personnel; and by Maj. Ann Hogan, ANC, of the Office of the Surgeon General.

Lt. Col. Thelma J. Ryan, ANC, Reserve, Dean of the School of Nursing, University of Buffalo, New York, discussed the Army Nurse Corps Reserve training.

Wednesday was used to implement the points made on the previous two days by the speakers and to discuss the problem needing professional analyses and administrative decisions.

Among those present were: (Lt. Col. unless otherwise designated) Helen M. Abramowska, MFSS, Brooke AMC, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.; Maj. Robena C. Anderson, Hqs., Second Army, Ft. Meade, Md.; Maj. Edith A. Ayres, Office of the Surgeon, Hqs., Fifth Army, Chicago, Ill.; Maj. Mary C. Bateman, USAH, U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.; Ruby G. former Katherine Peirce of Atlanta, Ga. He and Mrs. Henderson and their son, George, 15, reside at Ft. Jackson. Another son, 2d Lt. Walter Henderson, is with the Third Infantry Regiment at Ft. McNair, Washington, D. C.

COL. JUSTICE M. CHAMBERS, USMC-Ret. (left) receives the Civil Defense Administration's Certificate of Merit from Gov. Val Peterson, Administrator. Colonel Chambers recently resigned from the CDA to become assistant executive director of the Reserve Officers Association. The award recognized his work as assistant CD administrator.

AF Motor Vehicle Upkeep Reduced by New System

The Air Materiel Command has adopted a new system for maintenance of its motor vehicles which closely parallels that of commercial enterprises.

This plan, decided upon after an extensive study of both Government and commercial vehicle maintenance, will save the Air Force several million dollars a year, it is predicted.

As now practiced, certain inspection requirements, such as packing front wheel bearings, have been extended to much longer intervals. Minor inspections will be made every 2000 miles, or 90 days, rather than every 1000 miles, or 30 days, as formerly was done. Major inspections will occur after 12,000 miles, or annually, instead of 6000 miles, or six months.

Greatest savings will be realized in the operation of passenger cars and light trucks, which make up the bulk of the fleet of military administrative vehicles.

In contrast, savings for trucks over 1½ tons are listed as zero, due to the normally lesser mileage of heavy trucks.

Jet Side-by-Side Trainer Contract To Cessna

A million dollar contract for the production engineering and tool designing on the T-37A, the first jet side-by-side trainer produced for the Training Command, has been awarded by the Air Materiel Command to Cessna Aircraft Company, Wichita, Kans.

The contract stipulated that the airframe tooling design shall be for sufficient quantity to sustain maximum production.

Cessna originally was awarded the contract for a prototype jet aircraft in competition with some eight other aircraft companies submitting a total of 15 different bids. Progress is underway, and the new contract for the T-37A was the go-ahead signal for all engineering necessary for turning out the trainer.

TEMCO to Build B-52 Parts

TEMCO Aircraft Corporation, Dallas, Tex., has been awarded a multi-million-dollar contract by Boeing Airplane Company, Wichita Division, calling for the tooling and production of two major components of the B-52 Stratofortress, Robert McCulloch, TEMCO president, announced this week.

Both the components that TEMCO will build are fuselage sections, McCulloch said.

TEMCO Aircraft is also currently producing major assemblies for the McDonnell F3H and F-101, Lockheed P2V, Martin P5M and Convair B-36. Other aircraft for which TEMCO has produced major assemblies in past years are the Fairchild C-82 and Douglas A2D.

Col. Krueger Honored

Col. Walter Krueger, Jr., CE, USA, recently was honored by the Philadelphia Chapter of the Pennsylvania Society of Professional Engineers as the "outstanding engineer in the Metropolitan Philadelphia area."

This is the first time the Society has voted such a citation to an officer of the Army.

Colonel Krueger recently left the Philadelphia District, where he was District Engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers, to become the Resident Member of the Engineer Developments Board at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Heads Ft. Sheridan Brigade

Brig. Gen. Theodore W. Parker, formerly Eighth Army Artillery Officer, will assume command of the 45th AAA Brigade at Ft. Sheridan, Ill.

He arrived in Korea 24 Jan. 1953 and was Division Artillery Commander for the 45th Infantry Division from January to June 1953, and Corps Artillery Commander for the X Corps from June to September 1953. He became Artillery Officer, Eighth Army, last October.

Cut Paper, Save Half-Million

The Pentagon hopes to save half a million dollars annually by use of a new simplified reporting form, Charles S. Thomas, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Supply and Logistics, has declared.

The new form, which replaced five such forms previously used, establishes a production scheduling system for a list of 550 major "hard goods" items such as planes, tanks, vehicles, ammunition, electronics, etc.

"Now, for the first time, we will have complete current information on the production of these defense items," Mr. Thomas said. "In addition, the new form will eliminate approximately 300,000 man hours of needless paper work each year. The improved reporting system illustrates one way in which it is possible to give 'more defense for less dollars,'" he added.

Ingalls Gets Ship Award

The Ingalls Shipbuilding Corporation, Pascagoula, Miss., has been awarded a contract for construction of two dock landing ships.

RAADM. W. D. Leggett, Jr., USN, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, announced a fixed price of $31,273,460.

Of 12 shipyards invited to submit proposals, seven supplied quotations; the lowest was submitted by Ingalls Corp.

Auto-Pilot For HSL-1

'Copter for Navy ASW

The first automatic pilot to fly an anti-submarine helicopter during operation of its airborne sonar equipment and to stabilize it successfully has been developed by the Bell Aircraft Corporation.

Although designed specifically for the Navy's HSL-1 helicopter, the auto-pilot can also be used for other rotor craft.

The new system permits automatic stabilization of the HSL-1 during long periods of submarine search under all weather conditions, and relieves the crew of tedious constant manual control of the helicopter during use of the sonar equipment. One of the unusual features of the new system is that the pilot can insert commands into the system while the 'copter is in operation.

This is especially useful in bad weather takeoffs and landings, or during hazardous rescues at sea, since the pilot can call upon the auto-pilot to provide full automatic control while, at the same time, it also is responding to his control.

Name Army Financial Chiefs

Assistant Secretary of the Army George H. Roderick and his deputy, Robert D. King, the Army's two top men in the field of financial management, recently were named honorary president and vice president, respectively, of the Army Finance Association.

In a brief Pentagon ceremony, Maj. Gen. Bickford E. Sawyer, Chief of Finance, and President of the Association, presented certificates of office to Secretary Roderick and Mr. King.

MATS Adds Samaritan To Air Evacuation Fleet

The addition of the C-131A "Samaritan" to the domestic air evacuation fleet of MATS promises more rapid evacuation and greater comfort for sick and wounded military personnel, Air Force Officers said this week.

The 235-mile-an-hour Convair plane has an air-conditioned, pressurized cabin with a variety of different arrangements of litters and seats. Varying combinations up to 37 seats or 27 litters and seven seats can be made. As a safety precaution, all seats will face rearward.

The "Samaritan" will be used to deliver patients from ports of entry to hospitals throughout the country, and also for transfer between hospitals in the United States.

One flight nurse and two medical students normally will accompany military patients on regular runs.

Model of newly approved building for the United Services Automobile Association, San Antonio, Tex.

USAA Buys 10 Acres for New Hdqs. Bldg.

Col. Charles E. Cheever, General Manager and Secretary-Treasurer of United Services Automobile Association, 1400 E. Grayson Street, San Antonio, Tex., has announced the recent purchase there of a 10-acre plot of ground on the southwest corner of Broadway and Hildebrand, on which the Association will erect a modern office building.

The growth of United Services Automobile Association, now 675 employees, has been so rapid that it has outgrown its present building, which in 1951 won the Association an award as "one of the 100 best offices in America."

The architects' plans, as approved, call for an 8-story modern T-shaped building which will contain approximately 225,000 square feet. The size of the building is indicated by the fact that the structure will run 240 feet east and west on Hildebrand with a frontage of 294 feet on Broadway. Large grounds and beautiful landscaping will feature the project.

The building will be placed approximately 200 feet back from Broadway, with the main entrance on Broadway, leaving a large paved area in the rear for the parking of approximately 600 automobiles.

The leg of the "T" which parallels Broadway will be three stories with kitchen and mechanical rooms on the first floor; cafeteria, an outdoor dining area on the second floor, while the mezzanine will be for future dining area expansion. The cross-bar of the "T" will contain seven floors for general office space with a small eighth floor for executive offices.

Membership in the United Services Automobile Association is limited, in general, to active and retired officers and warrant officers of the United States Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, Coast and Geodetic Survey; Reserve and National Guard officers when ordered to extended active Federal duty; the widows of such officers and warrant officers so long as their status is not changed by remarriage. Reserve and National Guard policyholders who are released from active duty may continue insuring with this Association so long as they retain their commissions or warrants.

W. O. Career Bill Heads for Fast Vote

promotions. Regarding permanent promotions, the Services are not able to make use of the pay grades since there are only two legal pay grades in the Army and the Air Force.

The proposed bill makes use of the four pay grades, and provides that after three years in grade as a W-1, warrant officers will be eligible for promotion to W-2; after six years as a W-2, warrant officers will be eligible for promotion to W-3; and after six years as a W-3, warrant officers will be eligible for promotion to W-4.

Mr. John R. Blanford, Committee Counsel, stated that, in general, warrant officers are willing to run the risk of attrition for the benefit of a guaranteed promotion system. He also pointed out that the new bill will give them the right to retire after 20 years' service. At the present time they are required to serve 30 years before retirement.

The measure has the backing of the Chief Warrant and Warrant Officers Association of the Coast Guard, the only organization representing warrant officers.

The bill establishes a selection system, but with the penalty of forced separation or retirement after twice being passed over for promotion.

Under the bill, a uniform retirement system would be established. All Regular and Reserve warrant officers on active duty, and temporary warrant officers on active duty will be eligible to apply for retirement after 20 years of active service. The legislation, as proposed, however, does not state that the request must be granted.

At the present time, warrant officers in the Navy and Marine Corps are required to complete 30 years' service before they are eligible to apply for retirement. Commissioned warrant officers of the same services, who have had 10 years of commissioned service, can apply for retirement after 20 years' service.

At present, Army and Air Force warrant officers may apply for retirement in their permanent grade after 20 years' service, but they can only be advanced to the highest grade satisfactorily served from 9 Sept. 1940 to 30 June 1946, and only after the completion of 30 years' service, including Reserve service.

In order to protect the rights of those warrant officers who now hold warrants, the Armed Services Committee amended its legislation so that the Secretaries of the various services may retain desirable warrant officers. The amendment permits the services to "cull out" those who do not deserve the rating.

Warrant officers now in the Army and Air Force may be permitted to remain in the reserve until 64, and in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard until 62, in order to complete the 20 years of satisfactory service necessary to qualify for retirement. This amendment protects those who cannot attain the 20 years' service by the time they reach 60. This provision applies only to those who now hold warrants. All others, Regular, Reserve, or Temporary, will be separated from the service when they reach the age of 60, with the exception of those Regular warrant officers who cannot complete 20 years of service which is necessary to qualify for retirement.

Transfer Possible for Some Army OCS Grads

A limited number of graduates of the Infantry and Artillery Officer Candidate Schools who volunteer and qualify may be commissioned in other branches of the Army.

This action is being taken because only two male officer candidate schools are receiving students at the present time and will continue to operate. They are located at The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., and The Artillery School at Ft. Sill, Okla.

The Engineer Officer Candidate School at Ft. Belvoir, Va., will graduate its last class under the present program in June.

Under the new policy, commandants may permit not more than 10 per cent of their graduates to be commissioned in the Armor branch, and not more than a total of five per cent in certain other branches of the Army. These branches are the Corps of Engineers, Signal Corps, Chemical Corps, Ordnance Corps, and Medical Service Corps.

Those who volunteer for commissioning in one of the indicated branches must have the necessary qualifications for appointment in that particular branch.

You'll get special attention from Journal advertisers—they cater to Service personnel.
